Writers Workshop
Grade 8
Required Cycle

New Jersey Student Learning Standards

Written by: Smita Ganatra
English Language Arts Mission Statement:

The Glen Ridge Public School’s writing curriculum is committed to enhancing students’ ability to write for a variety of purposes. Our program works to hone students’ ability to think and read critically, reason persuasively, and write eloquently. The lessons are designed to encourage writing habits that serve as the foundation for a variety of purposes—e.g., writing to persuade, inform, argue, entertain, evaluate, or explain. Ultimately, the goal is for students to recognize that all writing is multigenre (i.e., an argument text is strengthened by narrative, etc.). Our students will read mentor texts analytically, with the goal of producing their own effective and persuasive compositions. They will be taught to have an awareness of audience and purpose. Students will be challenged and encouraged to take compositional risks and develop critical thinking skills to hone their craft.

Course Description:

This cycle class is designed to continue to build on the skills of the seventh grade Writers Workshop. Students will use the writing process to draft, workshop, revise, and publish writing in various genres, including poetry and prose. This cycle allows students to explore their own style and voice. Personal narrative projects and quick-write prompts encourage students to abandon fixed, formulaic guidelines and take compositional risks. By using mentor texts that serve as examples of how writers develop their own unique voice and style, students will be able to study author’s craft, with special attention to word choice and structure, thereby cultivating their own individual writing style in the process.

Time Allotted (days of instruction): 1.5 weeks

New Jersey Student Learning Standards (NJSLs):

- RL.8.2. Determine a theme or central idea of a text and analyze its development over the course of the text, including its relationship to the characters, setting, and plot; provide an objective summary of the text.
- RL.8.4. Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in a text, including figurative and connotative meanings; analyze the impact of specific word choices on meaning and tone, including analogies or allusions to other texts.
- RL.8.5. Compare and contrast the structure of two or more texts and analyze how the differing structure of each text contributes to its meaning and style.
- RL.8.6. Analyze how differences in the points of view of the characters and the audience or reader (e.g., created through the use of dramatic irony) create such effects as suspense or humor.
- W.8.3. Write narratives to develop real or imagined experiences or events using effective technique, relevant descriptive details, and well-structured event sequences.
- W.8.4. Produce clear and coherent writing in which the development, organization, voice and style are appropriate to task, purpose, and audience.
- W.8.5. With some guidance and support from peers and adults, develop and strengthen writing as needed by planning, revising, editing, rewriting, or trying a new approach, focusing on how well purpose and audience have been addressed.
- W.8.6. Use technology, including the Internet, to produce and publish writing and present the relationships between information and ideas efficiently as well as to interact and collaborate with others.
- W.8.10. Write routinely over extended time frames (time for research, reflection, metacognition/self correction, and revision) and shorter time frames (a single sitting or a day or two) for a range of discipline-specific tasks, purposes, and audiences.

- SL.8.1. Engage effectively in a range of collaborative discussions (one-on-one, in groups, and teacher-led) with diverse partners on grade 8 topics, texts, and issues, building on others’ ideas and expressing their own clearly.

- L.8.1. Demonstrate command of the conventions of standard English grammar and usage when writing or speaking.
- L.8.2. Demonstrate command of the conventions of standard English capitalization, punctuation, and spelling when writing.
- L.8.3. Use knowledge of language and its conventions when writing, speaking, reading, or listening.
- L.8.4. Determine or clarify the meaning of unknown and multiple-meaning words or phrases based on grade 8 reading and content, choosing flexibly from a range of strategies.
- L.8.5. Demonstrate understanding of figurative language, word relationships, and nuances in word meanings.
- L.8.6. Acquire and use accurately grade-appropriate general academic and domain-specific words and phrases; gather vocabulary knowledge when considering a word or phrase important to comprehension or expression.

Define “vignette”

Each cycle will complete two of the following:

- Read, annotate, and discuss the poem, “On Listening to Your Teacher Take Attendance” by Aimee Nezhukumatathis
- Begin brainstorming and researching what our names (first, middle, and last) mean. What is the origin of our last names? Why were we given our chosen names? How do we feel about our names? Do we prefer nicknames? Students will find valid and trustworthy online sources to track genealogy.
- Debate: Shakespeare’s question, “What’s in a name?” versus the Latin proverb “nomen est omen” (names are destiny). Students consider whether our labels/names impact our personalities and behaviors.
- Read, annotate, and discuss Sandra Cisneros’ vignette “My Name” from The House on Mango Street.
- Begin writing process for vignette.
- Read, annotate, and discuss “Jorge” by Jorge Chica
- Continue working on personal vignette using mentor texts.
- View “What’s in a name?” a 3-minute segment on CBS Sunday Morning; use this as inspiration to continue working on composition.
- Read an excerpt from Life of Pi by Yann Martel to... examine how Pi creates a nickname for himself; continue working on compositions; conference and edit for final submission

My House Vignette:
- Quick Write: Describe your house
- Discuss the coinage of the phrase “American Dream,” originated by James Truslow Adams, in his book The Epic of America (1931)
- Read, annotate, and discuss Sandra Cisneros’ vignette “The House on Mango Street” from The House on Mango Street.
- Students will compose a vignette about their own houses.

Hairs Vignette
- Read, annotate, and discuss Sandra Cisneros’ vignette “Hairs” from The House on Mango Street.
- Students will select a physical feature (hair, eyes, ears, noses, fingers, etc.) to describe five people (family members, teammates, classmates, friends, etc.). The focus will be on “Show, Don’t Tell.” How can you reveal someone’s personality through descriptive details?

Resources/Materials

1. “On Listening to Your Teacher Take Attendance” by Aimee Nezhukumatathis (poetryfoundation.org)
2. “My Name”; “The House on Mango Street”; “Hairs” - The House on Mango Street by Sandra Cisneros (available online)
4. “What’s in a name?”- CBS Sunday Morning (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6RkCzll64d8&feature=emb_logo)
5. Life of Pi by Yann Martel

Interdisciplinary Connections

History, Social Studies, Geography: By researching the origins of their own names, students consider where they came from. They learn details regarding their ancestry.

History & Literature: Jorge Chica’s personal essay explores a variety of historical and literary connections, including references to Georgics by Virgil, the Biblical George, British monarchs named George, and our first president, George Washington.

21st Century Life and Careers

- CRP4. Communicate clearly and effectively and with reason.
- CRP6. Demonstrate creativity and innovation.

Technology Standards

- 8.1.8.A.2. Create a document (e.g. newsletter, reports, personalized learning plan, business letters or flyers) using one or more digital applications to be critiqued by professionals for usability.
- 8.1.8.E.1. Effectively use a variety of search tools and filters in professional public databases to find information to solve a real world problem.

Diversity/Inclusion

Using the philosophy presented by Gholdy Muhammad in Cultivating Genius: An Equity Framework for Culturally & Historically Responsive Literacy, the mentor texts (listed above in Resources/Materials) are all chosen to achieve the following goal: “Ask students to write their autobiographies and personal narratives. Students can start with their earliest memories of traditions, education, religion, triumphs, defeats, and so on. Teachers must have permission to read such personal accounts” (Muhammad 52).

- Brainstorm: Students will list any important events that they learned about either through the news or from a family member or at school. These are events that they were removed from due to space and/or time and learned about after the fact.
- To add to this brainstorming list, we will watch a CBS Sunday Morning “Year in Review” video. Students can add to their list if they see events in this video that fit the above-mentioned prompt.
- Read, annotate, and discuss “September Twelfth, 2001,” a poem by X.J. Kennedy. Students will examine stanza division, enjambment, word choice, imagery, perspective and author’s message.
- Students will select one important event that they were not present for but still has been impactful to them (birth of a sibling; death of a loved one; natural disaster; sports victory or defeat, etc.). They will compose their own poem using Kennedy’s poem as a model.
- During the final day of composition, students will be asked to choose an obscure vocabulary word from a list provided. They will revise their poems to infuse this vocabulary word and thereby explore how word choice can enhance writing. Words include: CROOCHIE-PROOCHLES; NIHEDONIA; ALYSM; DEJÀ-VISITÉ; MISSLIENESS; EUENEIROPHRENIA; MALNEIROPHRENIA; LONESOME-FRET; FAT-SORROW; HUCKMUCK; PARO
- On the due date, we will celebrate writing with a publishing party. Students will have a chance to read peers’ poems (anonymous) and leave positive feedback.

By hearing their peers offer their interpretations of Kennedy’s poem, they are able to gain clarification and insight; poetry is “an invitation to understand others ‘on a different level’” (Michelle Emery Blake and Suzie T. Cashwell, “Use of Poetry to Facilitate Communication about Diversity: An Educational Model,” 2003). It is an opportunity to hear “others relate their experiences and thoughts ‘in their own words in a nonthreatening manner’” (ibid). |

Writers Workshop 8 Cycle

Unit 4: Short Story

New Jersey Student Learning Standards (NJSLS):

- RL.8.2. Determine a theme or central idea of a text and analyze its development over the course of the text, including its relationship to the characters, setting, and plot; provide an objective summary of the text.
- RL.8.3. Analyze how particular lines of dialogue or incidents in a story or drama propel the action, reveal aspects of a character, or provoke a decision.
- RL.8.4. Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in a text, including figurative and connotative meanings; analyze the impact of specific word choices on meaning and tone, including analogies or allusions to other texts.
- RL.8.6. Analyze how differences in the points of view of the characters and the audience or reader (e.g., created through the use of dramatic irony) create such effects as suspense or humor.
- RL.8.10. By the end of the year read and comprehend literature, including stories, dramas, and poems at grade level text-complexity or above, scaffolding as needed.
- W.8.3. Write narratives to develop real or imagined experiences or events using effective technique, relevant descriptive details, and well-structured event sequences.
- W.8.4. Produce clear and coherent writing in which the development, organization, voice and style are appropriate to task, purpose, and audience.
- W.8.5. With some guidance and support from peers and adults, develop and strengthen writing as needed by planning, revising, editing, rewriting, or trying a new approach, focusing on how well purpose and audience have been addressed.
- W.8.6. Use technology, including the Internet, to produce and publish writing and present the relationships between information and ideas efficiently as well as to interact and collaborate with others.
- W.8.10. Write routinely over extended time frames (time for research, reflection, metacognition/self correction, and revision) and shorter time frames (a single sitting or a day or two) for a range of discipline-specific tasks, purposes, and audiences.

will write about one of your favorite characters from books, movies, comics, or any other genre. Students will respond to the following: Why do you like that character? What makes that character unique? What does this character look like? Act like? What does this character want? What obstacles keep this character from getting the thing they want?

- Quick Write: Students will write about an event that they found mysterious in some way. They will focus on how the mystery affected them. Five minutes.
  - 150 words.
  - Imagery
  - Suspense
  - Foreshadowing

- Mentor Text: We will read, annotate, and discuss Peter Orner’s short story “The Deer.” Students will consider the following:
  - What happens to the deer?
  - The girl doesn’t just see this prey/predator relationship in passing. What is her reaction to seeing the deer?
  - Theme: The girl is pinned in place by forces she doesn’t quite understand, while at the same time sensing their significance. Find evidence of this.
  - Theme: The meaning of silence in our often overburdened world. Evidence?

- Character Sketch: An interesting character has unique personality traits, an intriguing back-story, flaws to overcome, and a goal to pursue. Students will brainstorm a character by coming up with a name, age, gender, occupation, and setting. They will list these on a piece of scrap paper and crumble up the paper. We will play “Snowball,” allowing students to throw their crumpled pieces of paper in a snowball fight. After 1 minute, each student will have one “snowball” in hand. They must use one of the ideas on this snowball for their own story.

- Students will begin writing, using our discussion about exposition and hook as inspiration. Students will be encouraged to treat the setting like a character. While they write, they will conference with teacher.

- Mentor Text: Examine the first paragraph of Kristin Hannah’s On Mystic Lake, a heading-home-to-heal novel. How does Hannah treat setting like a character?

- Students will continue their stories by composing the rising action:
  - Add a series of relevant incidents that create suspense, interest, and tension in a narrative.
  - Include all decisions, characters’ flaws, and background circumstances that together create turns and twists leading to a climax.
  - Pit characters against hostile environments.
  - Pit them against antagonists or even against allies (if relationships sour).
  - Focus on characters’ motivations and desires.
  - Use dialogue to show, not tell.

- Students will continue their stories by composing the climax. The conflict or tension must reach its highest point here. This must be a decisive moment for the character.
  - Option 1: Increase external conflict
    - Conflict brings urgency, propelling the story to a necessary resolution or meltdown.
    - Conflict between characters (competition for power, competing wants or needs, ideological differences in beliefs)
    - Conflict between characters and their environment
  - Option 2: Amplify internal conflict
    - The wars that rage within your characters are brought to their breaking points
  - Option 3: Use setting to add uncertainty
  - Option 4: Offer a turning point by introducing something important about a character’s past

- Students will complete the story with falling action and unresolved resolution. They will wrap up the loose ends but close in a way that leaves the conflict unresolved, just like Orner’s mentor text. While they write, they will conference with teacher.
- Peer Editing: Students will be assigned a peer editor who will respond to the following:
  - Word count (500-1000)
  - Identify the climax in the comments.
  - Resolution: What do you think will happen?
  - Comment on how you believe the setting contributes to the overall plot.
  - What sort of conflict is present--internal or external?
  - What is the most powerful word used in the whole story?
  - Comment on the title.
- Revise based on peer’s comments; submit final draft.

Interdisciplinary Connections

- The close reading and writing skills we use in this unit are transferable to all subject areas.
- Discussion of stories within context helps students connect with and understand different environments and historical periods.
- When looking at character development, many connections can be made to the study of psychology or sociology.

21st Century Life and Careers

- CRP4. Communicate clearly and effectively and with reason.
- CRP6. Demonstrate creativity and innovation.

Technology Standards

- 8.1.8.A.2. Create a document (e.g. newsletter, reports, personalized learning plan, business letters or flyers) using one or more digital applications to be critiqued by professionals for usability.
- 8.1.8.E.1. Effectively use a variety of search tools and filters in professional public databases to find information to solve a real world problem.

Diversity/Inclusion

Since there are no required parameters about what students’ stories should be about, there are opportunities for students to develop a story about anything, thereby allowing for diverse perspectives.

Writers Workshop 8 Cycle

Unit 5: Film Study

Time Allotted (days of instruction): 1 week

New Jersey Student Learning Standards (NJSLS):

- RL.8.6. Analyze how differences in the points of view of the characters and the audience or reader (e.g., created through the use of dramatic irony) create such effects as suspense or humor.
- RL.8.7. Evaluate the choices made by the directors or actors by analyzing the extent to which a filmed or live production of a story or drama stays faithful to or departs from the text or script.

- SL.8.2. Analyze the purpose of information presented in diverse media and formats (e.g., visually, quantitatively, orally) and evaluate the motives (e.g., social, commercial, political) behind its presentation.
- SL.8.4. Present claims and findings, emphasizing salient points in a focused, coherent manner with relevant evidence, sound valid reasoning, and well-chosen details; use appropriate eye contact, adequate volume, and clear pronunciation.
- SL.8.6. Adapt speech to a variety of contexts and tasks, demonstrating command of formal English when indicated or appropriate.

Essential Questions

- What does this film teach us about tolerance?
- How does one earn another’s respect and trust?

Student Learning Objectives

- Engage in thought-provoking group discussions that allow them to think and learn about tolerance, respect and trust, overcoming adversity,

Activities

- Students will research who The Freedom Riders were. They will predict why the film is entitled Freedom Writers.
- Students will receive a film study asking them to track
| ● How do individuals overcome diversity?
● What are the differing family relationships portrayed in the film and how do they compare with your own?
● How do the students in the film recognize that violence does not solve one’s problems?
● How do the characters in the film achieve success?
● How does the film portray inequalities present in education?
● How can writing be cathartic? | family relationships, anti-violence and anti-gangs, steps to finding success and the inequalities that exist in education. | character development, climactic moments, and the themes explored in the film.
● We will view about 35 minutes of the film each class period, pausing to discuss and respond to the questions in the film study.
● Upon completion of the film, we will view interviews with actors, the director, and the teacher, Erin Gruwell. |
